THE PATENT MEDICINE KID (Krazy Kat)

Krazy Kat is selling a snake oil patent medicine which is supposed to cure any and all ailments. He has one lone listener and after giving him a lengthy sales talk, finds out he is deaf, dumb and blind.

Krazy Kat finally manages to collect a crowd and demonstrates successfully a corn cure, a rejuvenation and a strength building quality of the medicine, and sells a great many bottles of his medicine.

He is induced to doctor a sick lion suffering from loss of appetite. After taking his temperature and removing the coat from the lion's tongue, he gives him a large dose of medicine which brings back his appetite.

On seeing Krazy Kat, the lion makes a leap for him and chases him back to his wagon. He ties the lion up in the wagon, and thinking he has successfully eluded the beast, turns to walk away. But the wagon takes shape into a lion and chases the feline out of town.

THE END.
